14th January 2019

Dear colleagues,

At IA we have been talking about curriculum a lot in the last week. As an SLT we have been reading Mary Myatt's 'The Curriculum: Gallimaufry to Coherence' and we spent our meeting last week discussing the key themes and how we apply them to our curriculum. I think it's important to remember that within Paradigm we are in a very privileged position as we are able to build and plan our curriculum all the way through from key stage one to three. We are therefore able to ensure that our pupils have strong foundations of knowledge to lead them into further study as well as becoming well informed citizens.

We often talk about knowledge rich curriculum, without necessarily giving the term much thought. I think this EEF blog post written by Alex Quigley explains this concept effectively.

Kind regards,
